This represents the total number of visits made during the observed period. It serves as a basic measure of activity and engagement.

- Validated Visits: 9

This indicates the number of visits where all relevant procedures have been followed, and no issues were encountered. This is an important metric as it represents successful engagements with customers or sites.

- Pending Visits: 0

No visits are currently awaiting validation or resolution, which suggests a swift response to site issues.

- Visited Visits: 1

This signifies that one visit was made where the agent physically visited the location but further actions were required. This could be due to unforeseen circumstances.

- Rejected Visits: 0

No visits have been rejected, which indicates that all visits adhered to the necessary standards and requirements.

- Average Duration: 0.03

This represents the average duration of a validated visit in hours (0.03 = 3 minutes). A lower duration might indicate efficient service delivery, but it could also imply rushed or incomplete engagements.

Trends and Patterns:

- It appears that most visits are occurring every day within the observed period.

- Most visits involve routine inspections (6 out of 10), while only 4 visits were made for specific reasons such as customer complaints, inventory discrepancies, or equipment malfunctions.

Implications and Recommendations:

- Given the high number of routine inspections, it may be beneficial to streamline these processes to save time and resources.

- Addressing the issues related to customer complaints, inventory discrepancies, and equipment malfunctions should be a priority to maintain customer satisfaction and operational efficiency.

Anomalies and Outliers:

- There is one outlier in terms of the average duration (0.25 hours) for the 'visited' visit on 2025-05-28 by Anonyme Test0, indicating a significantly longer engagement time compared to other visits.

This could be due to complex or unforeseen circumstances that required more time to address, but it is important to investigate further to ensure efficient service delivery.
